

Caroline Geys Biography

Caroline Geys was born on April 30, 1980 in Wilryk, Belgium (fluent in Flemish/Vlaams) and moved to Orlando, Florida with her family in 1983. She began drawing at the age of 7 and was inspired by her father's private art collection. At an early age, Caroline ventured with her father to auctions and galleries and began to develop an artistic eye fueled by the diversity of the art she was constantly exposed to.

Caroline's first trip to New York City was in 1999 and the art, architecture and energy of the big apple served as the basis of her inspiration. At that time, Caroline attended the University of Florida's Business School in Gainesville, FL and enjoyed her first exhibit in Gainesville, FL. Shortly thereafter, Caroline moved to Ft. Lauderdale, FL to complete her Bachelor's in Business Administration at Florida Atlantic University with two majors; Marketing and Real Estate. Although she took a few different type of art classes throughout college, she is a self-taught artist who developed her own style sans influences from traditional fine art educators or coursework.

Caroline moved to Miami Beach in August 2005 upon receiving a marketing and public relations position at Kobi Karp Architecture and Interior Design, a prestigious firm in the Miami area. She was employed at the firm for two and a half years concurrently nurturing and executing her own fine artwork. Since her first exhibit in Gainesville, Caroline has had numerous well-received exhibitions of her paintings in South Florida – each one more successful than the last. She is currently living on Miami Beach and is working from home/studio.
